Facebook Acquires 9.9% Stake Of Indian Internet Giant, Jio At $5.7 Billion

Facebook announces a $5.7 billion investment in Jio Platforms. Jio is a subsidiary of Reliance Industries, a multinational conglomerate that also has subsidiaries in retail, telecommunications, petrochemicals, textiles, and more.

More than 388 million people in India have been connected to the internet over the past four years through Jio. Therefore, this synergy will help businesses, including the 60 million small businesses in India and also explore new opportunities. This is the largest investment for a minority stake by a technology company anywhere in the world and the largest foreign direct investment in the technology space in India.

Both Amazon and Walmart have been aggressively expanding in India. Amazon announced in January that it was investing $1 billion in India, and Walmart made an enormous $16 billion investment in India's Flipkart a couple years ago.

In case you haven't noticed, it's time to invest in India - not China.

1. Walmart - Doug Mcmillon

2. Amazon - Jeff Bezos

3. Now, FaceBook - Mark Zuckerberg.

With a growing presentiment of contempt toward China - Investments in China are sinking while investments are pouring into the thriving Indian economy.

India, and not China, is the place to be. 2020
